INVENTS ELECTRIC GUN.

Pittsburg Man Does Away with Powder and Noise.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 6.—An electric gun has been invented by Alexander F. Humphrey which he says will do away with powder and noise in the firing of guns. He claims to have discovered the method of propelling projectiles by electricity at a greater speed than powder or dynamite. It is claimed that the gun is similar to that of rifles now in use.

NEW THEATRE IN NEW YORK OPENED

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—A remarkable gathering of statesmen, financiers and newsmen marked the coronation of a new era in connection with the opening of the New Theatre, the enterprise founded upon the subscriptions of wealthy New Yorkers for the uplift and winning of the dramatic field.

The beautiful playhouse at Central Park West, Sixty-second and Sixty-third streets was dedicated to the people, Governor Roosevelt presiding, with Mayor LaGuardia and others as guests of honor. In the afternoon, and Miss Julia Marlowe and E. H. Southern presiding "Antony and Cleopatra" in the evening to an invitation of 2,000.

The orchestra played Beethoven's overture, "The Dedication of the House." It came the delivery of the keys, followed by a choral ode written by Percy Mackay and sung by the chorus.

FLM CO., their model hothory in Lexington, where all of the water is bottled. Less than a year ago they moved up their 300-ton broach to deliver runs for their sister Boston delivery, doing away with the old plan of hauling from Lexington and delivering by the same train. This plan was so successful that the other companies soon knew they were obligated to occupy new and larger quarters. After a year's lease, the 1775 BACK BAY will remain the same.

WOMAN MAN'S PEER, SAYS SEELYE, BUT SHE NEEDN'T VOTE

President of Smith, About to Retire, Discusses Education for Other Sex.

DECLARES MARRIAGE IS NOT A LIFE-MOTIVE

Veteran Educator Points Out That Her Influence Is Not Always Purifying.

PRESIDENT L. CLARK SEELYE, of Smith College, the largest educational institution for women in the world, has given expression to his opinion on the question of the education of women in a manner which has been extensively discussed by thousands. No one who has read his book "The Education of Women" will be surprised at his conclusions. He has been a pioneer in the movement for the education of women, and his views are the result of long and careful study. He declares that marriage is not a life-motive, and that the influence of women is not always purifying. He also discusses the education of women in general, and the role of women in society.

Unique and Pathetic Petition Presented to State Commissioners, N. H.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 6.—George Matthews, blind and lame of this town, brought before the state and gave commissioners a petition which is as unique as it is pathetic. Mr. Matthews asks that corner stones be abolished at all crossings, and that all crossings be made safe for the blind. He says that he has been struck by corner stones many times, and that he has been injured. He asks that the state take action to prevent such accidents in the future.

Pelletier, the New District Attorney, to Clean House in a Vigorous Way

Sketches of Joseph C. Pelletier, the newly elected District Attorney, drawn from life by Gordon L. Parsons, of the Boston American Art staff.

Sketches of Joseph C. Pelletier, the newly elected District Attorney, drawn from life by Gordon L. Parsons, of the Boston American Art staff.

"What will Pelletier do?"
"Has Pelletier the sand?"
It is the talk of the street just now. What manner of man is the new District Attorney? How will he conduct his office? How will he deal with the many cases that are before him? These are the questions that are being asked. Pelletier is a man of many talents, and he is expected to do a great deal of good for the city. He is a man of strong convictions, and he is expected to stand up for the law. He is a man of many talents, and he is expected to do a great deal of good for the city.

Has No Use for Grift or Grifters.
No need to discuss the policy I will pursue as District Attorney, said Mr. Pelletier. I shall do as I see fit, and I shall do it in a vigorous and efficient manner. I shall not be swayed by the grift or the grifters, and I shall not be swayed by the grift or the grifters. I shall do as I see fit, and I shall do it in a vigorous and efficient manner.

Plenty of Mummies.

COURT GIVES DOG PROBATION TERM

Sig "Ben" of Newton Is Mighty Polite Since He Got in Clutches of Law. F

That is considered the strongest protection sentence on record was pronounced by Associate Justice Hugo H. "Bea" Rhea last week before the "Bea" Rhea, Edward Douglas Whiting, to the Worcester quarterly, was placed on probation for three months. "Bea" is to keep the peace for that time at least. If he fails, the watchful probation officer is to report the case to the court with pronounced scientific evidence for his many misdeeds.

Not that "Bea" is purposely ferocious, but it is just one of those too energetic dogs with an excess of bark and a manner of barking which produces such a bad influence in general, and Timothy Kiselka is particular.

Terror to Stray Cats.

Timothy Kiselka is the man who

A Warren squith, who appeared in court to defend his slain-art cousin, declares that there are no squiths in the territory. He says that Kimsi is a white man, a chicken in revenge for what "Bop" killed the last. He also says that in the first place, the Indian had no right to take the squith.

Ben removed from the claim that "Ben" attempted to take a bite out of the little Joseph's girl's leg, comes the statement from Mr. Jaquith that "Ben" just does his children and rumps and plays by the hour with the foster child of the Jaquith's, the Edna O'Brien.

"I never heard of a dog being placed on probation before," said Mr. Jaquith, "but I think it was very kind and humane of the judge to be so considerate." He said he would be a good recommendation to his master's a little subdued and "flea-bait" man slightly less aggressive "step it up" within the clutches of the law.

Hoffman made two remarkable end runs—one in each half, and they stood out as features of the game, since neither team attempted to skirt the ends except in these and an other instance. As shown in the picture, Hoffman in the first half bent the whole field to the end and got around it on Harvard's 52-yard line. He ran after yards were before thrown in the second half he did the same trick around right end for 53 yards, the longest clear run outside the line at the stadium this year. PARADE WILL GLACE GRAND OPERA

Gowns, Jewels and Finery, Displayed as Never Before, Will Be Feature of Box and Pit as Well.

By Elizabeth Elliott.

AND now for Grand Opera. Kept to the very highest pitch of excitement and waiting restlessly in keener anticipation for the "First Night" society dames and demure have been spending the past few days like so many children trying on and parading about in their new gowns and jewels. They will "do" on the night of November 7, when the grand opera will be the social history of Boston, and it is prepared to do its share in making it a memorable one. Never before have the women of Boston made such a strenuous and united effort in a national way, and the result—well, just wait and be amazed. You have no doubt loved the Boston women dressed for the occasion, but declared that they have no style, don't have handsome clothes like women of other large cities, and wouldn't know how to wear them if they had—where? Tomorrow, society, in all the glory of gorgeous gown and bling jewels, will be on exhibition, and you can judge for yourself. The real fashion as well as the fringe will be there.

Of course there are only a limited number of families in Boston who are entitled to rank as fashionables and be regarded as members of the "smart set." All others must wear along as best they can with the allowance of good taste, brains, and common sense and line up while the procession goes by. There's not the dollar, is the vehicle in Boston, and the inner circle the great. Birth is the medium, and the admittance to Boston's 25th the supreme test.

Five Grades of Fashionables.
As Burke's Purse is divided by five different grades of nobility, so in Boston five descending degrees of fashionable precedence obtain.
First—The ultra smart and the ultra-famous.
Second—The Four Hundred, supplemented by a limited few ultra-fashionable folk of the present and the past.
Third—The outer fringe of the Four Hundred.
Fourth—The old colonial families.
Fifth—The working women, middle class—society in the grade.

And they'll all be there, representatives from each of the sets, and they will all be dressed the part.

Mrs. Bruce Allen is believed to be not only one of the most beautiful but one of the best dressed of the ultra-fashionable women, and her jewels are the rarest. In fact, the collective contents of the jewel cases of the fashionables in Boston approximate close to $150,000.

If a woman arrives to reveal effects in evening dress, besides her diamond tiara, a corsage piece of diamonds set valued at $75,000 is requisite, and the Boston society woman is not lacking in jewels of this and many other sorts.

With such resources of wealth at their command, the Boston society women could be the best dressed in the land, and after this, their final awakening. They no doubt will be, in fact, that dress remains heavy jewelry, as Boston women had far to lead all others in the future.

Heretofore there has been only one royal road to Boston's inner circles, but now the other is being opened. A woman who knows predict that in the future the lines would be less closely drawn and that the one best method in her own for the social ambitions, those who would pass the portals and sit among the chosen, was to pass as a noble on Beacon street or on the north side of the city, and have a box at the opera. It sounds easy, but I'm still sceptical.

But to revert to those who will attend the opera. Of course, Mrs. Jackson Gardner will be there, and she has a box in the first tier for the week. We need not look to her, however, for much in the way of reforming, though of late I have noticed a decided tendency on her part to gowning in the direction, and instead of appearing at the various smart functions in a rather rusty and worn black lace or satin, as has been her custom, she has been undergoing a sort of preliminary reform in this regard, so at grand opera I shall expect to see her complimenting gown and her precious diamonds.

Grand Display of Jewels.
Mrs. Gardner surely has some of the finest jewels in the country, and this will be her one grand opportunity to display them to the over-curious public which still looks to her as the leader of the smart set in the city.

Mrs. F. Gordon Dexter, who is another of the smart set, is not far behind in the question of jewels, and her gown is always of extreme elegance.

Within the confines of Boston, who as Elsie West was far and away the most beautiful and interesting debutante of her season. Mrs. Lora Anderson, whose jewels are of the rarest, is one of Boston's typically rich women, and one might expect a mission to drop from the sky as to see Mrs. Anderson, who is always faultlessly groomed, will also be there. The competition for honors among the smart set is keen, and it is not far behind in the question of jewels, and her gown is always of extreme elegance.

THURSDAY WEEDINGS ARE WEEKS FEATURE

WEDDINGS were celebrated in the city of New York on Monday, November 6, and it was the day for the "wedding of the week." In society's interest the past week and it says that Thursday, or actually the "day for the wedding," must be growing in popularity. As there were no less than ten weddings in the city, and the number of guests attending the wedding was large, it was a most interesting day.

Among the weddings were those of Miss Elsie West, who was married to Mr. Arthur Anderson at 3:30, and the wedding of Miss Elsie West, who was married to Mr. Arthur Anderson at 3:30, and the wedding of Miss Elsie West, who was married to Mr. Arthur Anderson at 3:30.

SHOW ANNOUNCEMENTS THIS WEEK LOOK LIKE HEADLINES
OF 'LATEST SPORTING EXTRA'

Prizefight Pictures and Battling Nelson Are Featured, but Yvette
Guilbert and Real Plays Also Have Their Innings at the Boston Houses.

By Morton Birge.

BOSTON'S dramatic mood, already pretty appetizing, gets an extra pinch of athletic interest this week to give it a sporting flavor.

The American Music Hall has the Johnson-Ketchel fight pictures, the "original copyright" ones from the Colma ring, so it is announced. Particular attention is called to the fact that the knock-out which Mr. Johnson handed to Mr. Ketchel in the twelfth round is the pictorial climax of the display.

Hardly less strenuous is the invitation from Keith's to come in and see Sam Mahoney, the Boston swimmer, swimming in a tank of ice water with real ice floating all around, with real ice floating all around Sam, being a native son, adds interest to this frappe novelty.

Mahoney is billed as a "sensation." As the headline feature, however, Keith's announces Yvette Guilbert, the French chanteuse, who has been diverting New York with new songs of late.

But, returning to the athletic ginger, the Columbia not only has the Nelson-Hyland fight pictures, but has Battling Nelson himself in connection with them. Patrons are assured, however, that the "Battling" one will "not dim the lustre of the burlesque troupe." The burlesque bunch is Sam T. Jack's aggregation, so this statement is a safe one.

Which goes to show that Boston is not hide-bound or narrow in its forms of entertainment. Some of us tomorrow night will go out on Huntington avenue and open our first grand opera season with all the dignity and ecstacy which this splendid occasion demands.

And some others of us will take equal joy in the fight films, the fighters, the swimmer-served-on-ice and other lively acts. Beside all these, there are the fine comedies, musical shows and other forms of the "legitimate," which are at many playhouses.

CHICAGO SHOWS ITS JEALOUSY.

Anyone would think that such cosmopolitan and varied quality of entertainment was a credit to a city, especially to Boston, which has suffered the sneers of envy and has been taunted as a "high-brow" by less gifted cities.

But, right while we are demonstrating that our blood runs hot and our pulse beats quick, there comes a gift from jealous Chicago—of all places—taunting us because some of Boston's Sunday theatrical advertisements are sprinkled with the "savage cuts of Saxon speech," which bite through the underlying like a knife through hot butter. Listen to this from a Chicago paper:

"Chicago's peevish one objects because Fred Doherty, press agent for the Old Harvard, handed one of his recent announcements with the word 'At' and then proceeded to say that the burlesque show at the Old Harvard that week would 'lick your boys'."

Well, maybe it would. Anyhow, the shocked Chicago gentleman allows that "Boston, cultured hub of art and learning, coral of the overhanging bald spot—Boston stands exposed."

Then he weeps literary tears and howls, anon, that Boston has ever tried to teach Chicago to be chaste and scholastic.

The nerve of him. To say that Boston, or any other sane place, ever tried to make Chicago chaste.

BIG HOLD-OVER ATTRACTIONS.

But, to return to our own affairs. There are hold-over attractions at seven of the local theatres this week. They include:

"Three Twines," at the Boston; Miss Janis, in "The Fair Co-Ed," at the Colonial; "The Blue House," at the Globe; Grace George, in "A Woman's Way," at the Hollis; "The Rose of Algeria," at the Majestic; "A Gentleman from Mississippi," at the Park; and "The Love Cure," at the Tremont.

Of the four most recent ones, each has elements of especial interest to charm. Miss George's acting in "A Woman's Way" again shows her to be a charming comedienne in quick sympathy with her role. The astounding method she uses to restore domestic tranquility excites interested discussion after the play.

In "The Rose of Algeria," Boston people are glad to hear the Victor Herbert music, as sung by Eugene Cowles, Ethel Green, Lillian Herlein, the Berlin prima donna, and others in the big musical comedy cast.

The new Savage opera, "The Love Cure," with its interesting story, has as particular features Lina Abarbanel, the prima donna, esteemed here for "Merry Widow" days, and Charles J. Ross, the comedian.

In "The Fair Co-Ed" Miss Janis is, of course, the central figure. The George Ade comedy is written for her and gives her abundant opportunity to exercise her varied charms. Her new impersonations are among the chief of these.

ADVANCED MELODRAMA, TOO.

The Castle Square company will revive "A Bachelor's Moonlight" for this week.

The Grand Opera House, which recently announced that its melodramatic selections heretofore would be only the best obtainable, has "Broadway After Dark," which is described as "advanced melodrama." The fact that a leap from the spirit of Trinity Church, New York, by some desperate individual, is among the latest scenes would indicate that "Broadway After Dark" is going some.

The Bowdoin square bills "Heart of a Hero." The burlesque offerings, in addition to the Battling Nelson-Sam T. Jack combination at the Columbia, include Fred Irvine's Majestic at the Gaiety and the Frolicsome Lamb at the Howard Athenaeum.

The Castle Square Rock Company, which has sent many youthful aspirants well forward on the dramatic way, again numbers a newcomer from afar. She is Miss Florence Gardner, an eighteen-year-old native of California. Last week Miss Gardner had the role of Baroness Chevalier in "A Parisian Romance," and won extensive success. She has had singing roles in California and is expected to be a particular advantage to the Castle Square Company in musical plays. Miss Gardner was accompanied East by her mother, who shares with her daughter an apartment convenient to the theatre.

While accusing Chicago of being peevish, one must not deny to her a brisk sense of humor. Witness the following merry thought from the Chicago Tribune:

One of the Messrs. Montgomery and Stone's "Old Town" divinity, amply satisfied the other day to E. E. Price, representing Mr. Hilliard, and asked him if she might be admitted to the Illinois theatre to see "A Fool There Was." "I am Gladys Zell," she said simply. "And I'm as glad as you are," said Mr. Price, "walk right in!"

Here, too, is a stroke of unconscious humor from Mme. Ada Nisimova, whose English occasionally becomes mixed when she is particularly intense. At a recent rehearsal one of the cast read the lines too slowly. Nisimova cried impatiently:

"Quick! Up hurry!"

Rev. George J. Prescott, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd of this city, and a member of the Actors' Church Alliance, has views on the stage question which give food for thought. At the last meeting, he

A Noble Example and Incentive for All the CITIZENS OF AMERICA

CHE people of Boston, the men and the women, who look ahead and plan always for better conditions, have undertaken a noble and difficult work. Many efforts are embodied in the words so familiar to every inhabitant of New England "Boston Nineteen Fifteen."

The movement is patriotic and unselfish, based upon civic pride, self-denial and hard work.

The idea is to have the individual city make and carry out resolutions, as the individual in his private thought makes them and carries them out.

In the old days the swift runner carried in his hand a smooth object. This he threw ahead of him, and, as he ran and overtook it, he picked it up, carried it on, threw it ahead again, and thus, always keeping the object of his pursuit ahead of him, he accomplished wonders of speed and endurance.

"Boston 1915" is the shining ball of crystal that the people of Massachusetts and New England have thrown ahead of them. They have made up their minds to work and race with all the ardor of civic pride and collective enthusiasm, from now until the day when, six years hence, a great collective, social effort shall show its results.

It would be a splendid thing for the United States if this movement, so well begun by Boston, could be made NATIONAL in its scope.

In every undertaking, before everything else, A PLAN IS NECESSARY. The "Boston 1915" movement has a definite plan. It begins now with an exposition of present conditions and of hopes for the future. Unselfish people of all classes and races, and creeds, have united for the benefit of all. There is no selfish motive, only the desire of each for the approval of the others.

And this movement, beginning in Boston and destined to spread throughout the country, is the worthy descendant of that other great patriotic movement that had its birth in Boston before the United States existed, before the people of this land realized that it was A NATION.

"Boston 1915" means, in condensed form, determination to lift up, not one class, or one interest, but all of the city and ALL OF THE PEOPLE. The basic aspiration of every man concerned in this movement is to increase THE WELL-BEING OF THE AVERAGE MAN.

Every man willing to give faithful labor is entitled to reasonable and sufficient reward.

Every man who does his duty, whether he be great or small, is entitled to a living for himself, an education for his children, a chance to do whatever HE can do, a chance for those children to develop whatever may be in THEM.

"Boston 1915" is a protest against the system that would wear out a human being as a worker, and then care for him as a pauper. This plan of to-day, and of the future, is a plan that aims economically to do for the individual what the men of 1776 did for the nation POSITIVELY—make them free and independent, not only entitled to life, liberty and the PURSUIT of happiness, but entitled to life, liberty, reasonable comfort, and ACTUAL HAPPINESS, in return for faithful, honest service to the Commonwealth.

"Boston 1915" is a splendid movement, a movement worthy of free men, for it looks upward and ahead. No man can serve his selfish interests by adhering to this movement. All that any can get from it is the satisfaction of working for others.

This should be, not merely a marvellous collective effort of many—it is that already. It should also be a great inspiration to effort in the INDIVIDUAL.

Each citizen should say to himself, from now until 1915, "I shall do what I can to make my city a greater city, and at the same time I shall do constantly what I can TO MAKE MYSELF A BETTER CITIZEN."

The whole can be no better than the average of its parts. The city can be no better than the average of its citizens.

While the organizers and thinkers and planners of "1915" work on the broad lines of city and state improvement, the hundreds of thousands of individuals will do, each his share, along the line of individual improvement.

Every great step forward in humanity's history has been based ON THE ENTHUSIASM OF HUMAN BEINGS IN THE MASS. When men forget THEMSELVES, and think of each other, when the interest of the nation, or of the religious faith, rises above the personal interest, then human beings move forward.

Whether it be in the day of Peter the Hermit, or of Jefferson, or of this present unselfish 1915 aspiration, the fact remains that men move forward IN BODIES.

What Boston, the old leader of American thought and sentiment, does to-day, the other cities will do to-morrow. Nineteen fifteen will be echoed in centuries far ahead.

"PEERFOND LOVE"
THE STRANGE CONCEPTION OF THE FRENCH ARTIST A. GUILLAUME
EXHIBITED AT THE PARIS SALON—COPYRIGHT 1909 BY BRAUN, CLEMENT & CO.

"THE LAND BABY"
THE BEAUTIFUL PAINTING BY THE HON. JOHN COLLIER EXHIBITED
IN THIS YEAR'S ROYAL ACADEMY—PRINTED BY PERMISSION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY

The mermaid sits happily upon the diver's leather-covered knees and looks through the windows of his helmet with bewitching, maddening smiles. One cannot help feeling sorry for the diver, that he should be smothered in armor, so that he cannot even touch the lips of the lovely mermaid.

The submarine scenery has been picked up by M. Guillaume with great care after a profound study of the subject. We may not believe that mermaids are quite like this, but yet there are, doubtless, beneath the sea creatures as strange and beautiful as this whom we have not yet seen.

The other picture, "The Land Baby," is by the Hon. John Collier, who is greatly admired in England, and is probably the most popular exhibitor of the year at the Royal Academy. It is not as strikingly original as the other, but it is quite charming. A beautiful mermaid is gazing with longing admiration at an equally beautiful land baby, who is coming over the sands toward the sea creature. Perhaps the mermaid is going to lure the baby away with her into the sea, which, according to legend, is a habit that mermaids have.

ARTISTS have exhausted the subjects that are to be found on the face of the earth, and they have been forced to turn for inspiration to the realms beneath the sea. There the romance and mystery of the unknown still hold sway. Two of the most remarkable pictures of the year in Europe are inspired from this source. One of these pictures, which is singularly fantastic yet charming, is by A. Guillaume, the famous French artist. It shows us a diver who has gone down to the bottom of the sea for sordid commercial purposes, but has neglected them to engage in a desperate flirtation with an exquisitely beautiful mermaid, while a villainous shark, apparently moved by jealousy, sneaks up to cut the air-pipe.

MILLIONAIRE PALACES OF DISAPPOINTMENT.

Senator W. A. Clark of Montana's Empty House at 77th St. and Fifth Ave., New York, Which Has Cost $3,000,000, but Has Never Even Been Visited By His Wife.

By a strange freak of fate it happens that the most magnificent modern palaces in New York have never been occupied by the women for whom they were built and designed. These palaces in most cases were built to give delight to the daring wives of their millionaire owners, but before they could be occupied some unhappy event happened to part the husband and wife. The most remarkable features of them, the dainty handiwork of the ballrooms of colored marble, the exquisite tapestries and dainty, the silver and gold fixtures, the devices for summoning an army of servants, were intended primarily to delight the lady owner, but all the silver and gold were thrown away, and anger and disunion took the place of love and the desire to live.

To the happy wife of modern money, secure in her assurance that it must be very interesting to look at this or that magnificent house and reflect that the woman for whom it was specially built now passes it by as a stranger, with feelings far from pleasant.

Most conspicuous among these great houses which have never been occupied by the women for whom they were built, are those of Co. J. P. Huntington, at No. 2 East Fifty-seventh street, of Frank J. Gould, at No. 345 Fifth avenue, of Captain J. H. De la Mar at Thirty-seventh street and Madison avenue, of W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., at No. 664 Fifth avenue, of ex-Senator W. A. Clark, at Seventy-seventh street and Fifth avenue, of the former Mrs. Henry Storer, son Mrs. Terry Belmont, at No. 9 East Seventy-second street, of Mrs. James Henry Smith, at No. 871 Fifth avenue (the former home of William H. Whitney), and of Colonel John Jacob Astor, at No. 840 and 842 Fifth avenue, in its newly remodeled form.

The most astonishing history, possessed by any of these houses is probably that of the De la Mar house at Madison avenue and Thirty-seventh street. This is the largest and one of the finest houses in New York, as well as one of the most costly. It occupies a plot of the northern corner of Madison avenue and Thirty-seventh street, which is one of the most fashionable quarters of the city, within a few blocks of Pierpont Morgan's house and of other famous dwellings. It occupies a plot one hundred feet by fifty in area and is six and a half stories in height. It is therefore of most unusual size for a New York dwelling house.

It is in the style of the French Renaissance and is very bold and successful in treatment. It contains every modern luxury, including an automobile storage room, and charging station in vaults under the sidewalk. The exterior is of light gray granite and the roofs and towers are covered with red tile. This immense pile of stone was designed as a present offering to a beautiful bride who had become estranged, but it was offered in vain. She never lived in it, though never even saw it. Captain De la Mar, it is believed, has since offered it as an attraction to one or more brides, but in vain. It was said that he admired Madame Nordica, the singer, but she married another. Now she is thoroughly sick of his handsome stone palace. The chief fault in the Captain's eye is a picture of a single character appears to be a peculiar and increasing for him. It is probable that several full ones have passed the house and for no reason, and decided that they did not want the house.

The Captain was originally a diver, then a merchant commander and finally he became an immense fortune. He never and never missed in the West. When he first came to New York from the West he had a fortune of $25,000,000. At this point he saw by accident and fell in love with Nellie Stude, a beautiful girl living in an ordinary New York boarding house on Twenty-sixth street. She was the daughter of a Dr. Whitner, who died suddenly and mysteriously. New York druggist, and was nearly soon after acquiring it. External as poor that she presently never had up to it in plain even to the point of ugliness, so many dollars as the Captain had but internally it is a perfect museum of dollars. They were married, and he bought and furnished for her a fine house in Madison avenue—not the present palace.

Mrs. Nellie De la Mar, Who Preferred a Divorce to the Luxurious Home Captain De la Mar Built For Her at Madison Avenue and 37th Street.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Who Gives Up, For the Freedom of Separation Her Delightful Expectations of the Splendid Home Her Husband Has Been Refitting.

From the day of their marriage, it is said, he was largely jealous, and watched her every hour of the twenty-four. He had a special little constructed in the house, where he could watch every one who came in without being seen. They were in Paris, and took a long trip. Their troubles increased, and they were divorced. The Captain found, after a while, that he still loved his wife. He made efforts to win her back, and, as a supreme attraction, built the great house at Madison avenue and Thirty-seventh street. It did not attract her. About the time he completed his marriage, Mr. Huntington and settled down in Paris with out even taking a look at the house that was designed for her. A singularly tragic event prevented Mrs. James Henry Smith from occupying the most luxurious and artistically furnished house in New York. It stands at No. 971 Fifth avenue, at the corner of Fifty-ninth street. Previously it belonged to William C. Whitney, who died suddenly and mysteriously. He was a New York druggist, and was nearly soon after acquiring it. External as poor that she presently never had up to it in plain even to the point of ugliness, so many dollars as the Captain had but internally it is a perfect museum of dollars. They were married, and he bought and furnished for her a fine house in Madison avenue—not the present palace.

MODERN WITCHCRAFT

Science Explains the Power of One Mind Over Another Mind and How It Is Possible to Cause Sickness In Others and Even to "Think a Man to Death."

Great Medicine Man of the British Columbia Indians.

WITH the supposed sanction of Mrs. Eddy, the governing officials of the Christian Science "Mother Church" in Boston, have disciplined Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, the local leader of the Christian Science "First Church" in New York City, for "mental malpractice" and "malicious animal magnetism." The influence of one person's mind over the mind of another person for good or ill is one of the cardinal principles of the Christian Science faith, and if the human mind can influence other minds for good it logically follows that influences for bad may also be exerted—and this the Christian Science authorities admit.

Elsewhere on this page is printed a brief summary of some of the testimony offered against Mrs. Stetson and her followers in New York. Among other things, it was asserted that Mrs. Stetson and her practitioners at the First Church in New York on one occasion sat with closed eyes and tried "to think to death an objectionable person." One of the practitioners is alleged to have said:

"You all know Mr. So-and-So. You all know his place is in the darkness whence he came. If his place is six feet under earth, that is where he should be."

Mrs. Stetson and her associates deny the truth of these charges, and whether they are true or not true is of no consequence so far as the purpose of this page is concerned. Whether the distinguished leader and her devoted associates of the First Church of Christian Science of New York City are or are not guilty of "malicious animal magnetism," the extremely interesting question nat-rally arises as to whether it is really possible "to think to death an objectionable person." Is it possible for a human being to be destroyed through the power of mind? If Mrs. Stetson were capable of any such practices as have been charged against her would any such mental efforts to ruin mind or body amount to anything?

Entirely aside from any discussion of the merits of the controversy now going on in the Christian Science Church, it is instructive and interesting to learn exactly what Science (not Christian Science) has to say about the influence of mind over mind. Psychology is the particular branch of modern Science which is prepared to answer exactly how far one human being may be influenced by another human being for good or for evil, and how this may be accomplished, and what are the limitations of this power, and what safeguards one may adopt to insure protection against such influences.

In Bible times King Saul sought the counsel of the Witch of Endor; sorcery and black arts held undisputed sway in the Middle Ages, and until recent years witches were burned and the laws provided punishment for the witch. Does witchcraft have a basis in fact which is recognized in the scientific world?

Henry Smith Williams, M. D., LL. D., the well-known authority on psychology and author of "Every Day Science," "A History of Science," etc., etc., in a statement on this page explains exactly what science has to say about "mental malpractice" and "malicious animal magnetism," and shows how it is possible for mind and body to be destroyed by purely mental processes. Dr. Williams' statement follows:

A Scientific Explanation of Malicious Animal Magnetism.

"But once believe that others are thinking against you, and that they are able to affect you adversely by thinking, then there is no limit to the extent to which the evil may go. The knowledge that a great number of persons are thinking against you; that they are sitting about a dark room; that they are using strange ceremonies and incantations, all these and an endless chain of similar circumstances may aggravate your condition."

"Mental Malpractice."

WOMAN has been the victim of mental malpractice for centuries. The witch of Endor, who evoked the spirit of Samuel for King Saul, was a mental malpractice artist. The modern mental malpractice artist is a woman who, by the use of her mind, can affect the minds of others. She can make them believe that they are being thought against, and that they are being affected by the thoughts of others.
